

CLAUSE WISE ANALYSIS OF INDIA’S DIGITAL PERSONAL DATA PROTECTION BILL, 2023

This document¹ presents a clause wise analysis of the draft Digital Personal Data Protection Bill, 2023 introduced and passed in Lok Sabha² (“2023 Bill”). For reference, it compares the 2023 Bill with the Digital Personal Data Protection Bill, 2022 published by the Central Government in December 2022 (“2022 DPDPB”).³ Changes are highlighted in yellow. Key changes and impact are discussed in ‘Observations’.

The definition clarifies that processing includes both partial and wholly automated operations on personal data. The term "alteration" has also been removed from the illustrative list of operations that constitute automated processing of personal data (though this does not seem to be a material change). |

This is in contrast to the 2022 DPDPA – which used the terms - data collected “online” and “offline”. This clarified that the law applies to any data maintained in digital form, irrespective of whether it is collected over the internet or not (since the terms ‘online’ and ‘offline’ are usually used in relation to the internet). The 2023 DPDPA narrows the scope of the extraterritorial application of the law. The 2022 DPDPA applied to processing of digital personal data conducted outside India, in 2 cases – (i) where the processing was in “connection with any profiling” of data principals in India; and (ii) where the processing related to offering goods or services to data |

In such case, the provisions of this Act shall not apply. | (b) offline personal data; (c) personal data processed by an individual for any personal or domestic purpose; and (d) personal data about an individual that is contained in a record that has been in existence for at least 100 years. | principals in India. Now, the law only applies to activities relating to offering of goods or services to Data Principals in India. This means that the law does not apply where personal data of Indian residents is processed outside India only for profiling, i.e. analysing/predicting the behaviour, attributes or interests of a data principal in India. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The 2022 DPDPB provided four instances (exceptions) in which the law would not apply. The 2023 DPDPB appears to retain only one of these exceptions, namely, where personal data processed by an individual for any personal or domestic purpose. But on a holistic reading of the provisions, the exceptions in sub-clause 3(a) and 3(b) of the 2022 DPDPB are also applicable to the 2023 DPDPB. • The term "processing" in the 2023 DPDPB does not include non-automated processing of data, and there is no provision in the bill suggesting otherwise. Therefore, the 2023 DPDPB does not apply to non-automated processing of personal data (this was exception (a) in the 2022 DPDPB). • Under clause 4 of the 2023 DPDPB, the bill applies to "personal data collected in nondigital form and digitized |

(This is the exception for ‘offline personal data’ (i.e. exception (b) in clause 4(3) of the 2022 DPDPB.) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The exemption for data contained in old records (100 years+ old records) has been removed in the 2023 DPDPB. • The 2023 DPDPB exempts publicly available personal data from its scope in two cases – (i) where the data principal has made such data public, and (ii) where any other person, who is obliged under law to make such data public, has made such data public. The illustration suggests that data that a blogger posts herself will be exempt. This is an interesting exception – different from global privacy laws that also cover publicly available data (and typically only provide relaxations from consent requirements for such data). |

The 2023 DPDPB introduces a new illustration that explains the manner in which a data fiduciary can give notice to a data principal whose consent is taken before the 2023 DPDPB comes into force. |

As part of the contract, ‘B’ consents to: (a) processing of her personal data by ‘A’, and (b) | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • This suggests that when a data principal gives consent for data processing, the consent - (i) should be taken for a specified purpose; and (ii) should be limited to the data necessary for that specific purpose. So, where a data principal gives consent for her data to be processed for a particular purpose, the data fiduciary would only be permitted to process that data which is necessary for the specified purpose. And merely taking consent of the data principal for other data (which is not required for that purpose) would not allow the data fiduciary to process such additional data. The illustration accompanying the 2023 DPDPA Clause 6(1) has been updated to reflect this change. The 2023 DPDPA also adds that consent of the data principal should be unconditional. • The illustration accompanying the 2023 DPDPA, clause 6(5) has been updated. The 2023 DPDPB defines consent manager in clause 2, as a (Data Protection) Board-registered, single point of contact, that enables a data principal to give, manage, review and withdraw her consent through an accessible, transparent and interoperable platform. The definition allows for the consent manager to be any ‘person.’ This means that the consent manager can have a limited role of providing a platform to manage consent, without having all the obligations of a data fiduciary. • Under the 2022 DPDPB, a data fiduciary could not deny service under an existing contract to a data principal, on the ground the data principal has not consented to provide additional information (where such additional information was not necessary for the concluded contract). This restriction has been omitted from the 2023 DPDPB. |

| 12. Clause 11: Right to access information about personal data (1) The Data Principal shall have the right to obtain from the Data Fiduciary to whom she has previously given consent, including consent as referred to in clause (a) of section 7 (hereinafter referred to as the said Data Fiduciary), for processing of personal data, upon making to it a request in such manner as may be prescribed,— (a) a summary of personal data which is being processed by such Data Fiduciary and the | Clause 12: Right to information about personal data The Data Principal shall have the right to obtain from the Data Fiduciary: (1) the confirmation whether the Data Fiduciary is processing or has processed personal data of the Data Principal; (2) a summary of the personal data of the Data Principal being processed or that has been processed by the Data Fiduciary and the processing activities | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Under the 2023 DPDPB, individuals can make requests to access information only when collection was based on consent or deemed consent (i.e. when they have voluntarily provided data for processing). And not when data is collected for other ‘legitimate uses’. • The 2023 DPDPB introduces limits to the access request rights of data principals. If personal data is – (i) shared with a data fiduciary that is authorised by law to obtain such data; and (ii) shared as |

| 13. | Clause 12: Right to correction and erasure of personal data (1) A Data Principal shall have the right to correction, completion, updating and erasure of her personal data for the processing of which she has previously given consent, including consent as referred to in clause (a) of section 7, in accordance with any requirement or procedure under any law for the time being in force. | Clause 13: Right to correction and erasure of personal data (1) A Data Principal shall have the right to correction and erasure of her personal data, in accordance with the applicable laws and in such manner as may be prescribed. (2) A Data Fiduciary shall, upon receiving a request for such correction and erasure from a Data Principal: | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • This right is also limited to scenarios where individuals have given their consent or consent is deemed to have been taken (i.e. when the data fiduciary has collected personal data directly from the individual). • The 2023 DPDPA explicitly gives a data principal the rights to 'completion' and 'updating' of her personal data. |

The 2022 DPDPA provided an exception to the right of erasure, when retention was necessary for a “legal purpose.” This is clarified under the 2023 DPDPA, which states that an exception applies when the retention is required for compliance with any law (the other ground for retention of personal data is that it is necessary for the specified purpose). |
| 14. | Clause 13: Right of grievance redressal (1) A Data Principal shall have the right to readily available means of grievance provided by a Data Fiduciary or Consent Manager in respect of any act or omission of such Data Fiduciary or Consent Manager, regarding the performance of its obligations in relation to the personal data of such Data Principal or the exercise of her rights under the provisions of this Act and the rules made thereunder. (2) The Data Fiduciary or Consent Manager shall respond to grievances referred to in sub-section (1) within such period as may be prescribed from | Clause 14: Right of grievance redressal (1) A Data Principal shall have the right to readily available means of registering a grievance with a Data Fiduciary. (2) A Data Principal who is not satisfied with the response of a Data Fiduciary to a grievance or receives no response within seven days or such shorter period as may be prescribed, may register a complaint with the Board in such manner as may be prescribed. | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The 2023 DPDPA clarifies the grounds on which a data principal can file a complaint against a data fiduciary as well as a consent manager. These grounds include any act or omission by the data fiduciary or consent manager in relation to the personal data of the data principal, or in relation to the exercise of the data principal's rights under the 2023 DPDPA or rules framed under it. • The 2022 DPDPA provided a period of 7 days (or shorter period if prescribed) to data fiduciaries to respond to the grievances of data principals. The 2023 DPDPB narrows down this duty and specifies that a data principal must not suppress any material information while applying for issuance of documents, unique identifier, proof of identity or proof of address (the term [applying for] “service” has been omitted in the 2023 DPDPB) from the state/government and government bodies. • The 2023 DPDPB clarifies that there is a duty on data principals not to impersonate another person while providing data for a specified purpose. |

The terms and conditions of this restriction are not set out in law. Nor are the factors for putting a country on the blacklist. • The 2023 DPDPB also clarifies that any other law that requires higher degree of protection, will remain unaffected. However, the penalty for a data principal for breach of her duties appears in the Schedule to the bill, and remains the same as that in the 2022 DPDPB. • An additional circumstance under the 2023 DPDPB where the Data Protection Board can take action, is on receipt of an intimation of a personal data breach from a data fiduciary. • The 2023 DPDPB clarifies that representations to the Data Protection Board regarding a direction must be made only by those affected by said order. |

Instead, the 2023 DPDPB gives the Appellate Tribunal the power of enforcement of its orders, under clause 30, and states that orders of the Appellate Tribunal are executable as decrees of a civil court. • The standard for action against complainant for false cases has been increased from “devoid of merit” in the 2022 DPDPB to “false or frivolous” in the 2023 DPDPB. This lowers the risk for complainants. • In clause 28(10) relating to interim orders, the 2023 DPDPB replaces the phrase “concerned persons” with “person concerned.” |
